Clayton Kershaw sells at bargain-basement prices. "I've definitely had a whole lot of people ask me, 'Is he the best pitcher in the game?' If he is, it's a weird thing to be first. If he is, it's a weird thing to be the best pitcher in the game and not have your name anywhere on a World Series trophy or anything like that. That's always been a goal of mine," said the 27-year-old Los Angeles Dodgers pitcher, who was paired against the San Francisco Giants' All-Star Madison Bumgarner in Wednesday's NLDS Game 4. "Everything that I am, I owe to him," said Kershaw, who took a.375 batting average off of Bumgarner for a three-hit shutout. "Even if he wasn't on my team, he definitely would have been one of my favorite players growing up." Kershaw's idolicness started in his elementary school days, where the pitcher developed a knack for handing out signed jerseys to his classmates. The then-11-year-old baseball prodigy was handed a signed Kobe Bryant jersey and asked if he'd give it away.

Fort Hays State University
Fort Hays State University is a public university in Hays, Kansas. Founded in 1910 as Kansas State Normal School (renamed Fort Hays Teachers College in 1913), the university changed its name again in 1920 to the Kansas State Teachers College, also known as Fort Hays State College. In 1930, as part of the state's K-12 grade school system, the college became Fort Hays Senior College, in 1960 changed once again to the current name, Kansas State Fort Hays College, in 1970 it became a four-year institution, and in 1978 it became a college-level university. The university is part of the Kansas State System of Higher Education. The Fort Hays State campus is organized into fourteen colleges and schools: Arts and Sciences, Communications, Education, Engineering, Environmental Sciences, Health and Kinesiology, Human Development, Liberal Arts, Music and Recreation, Natural Resources, Nursing, Social Work, and Technology. There are also two interdisciplinary programs and a college-level graduate program. History The first school on the present site of Fort Hays State University was established in 1880, as the Fort Hays Normal School, with the first class graduating in 1883. The school was renamed Kansas State Normal School in 1904, and became Fort Hays Teachers College in 1913. The college name was again changed in 1920 to Kansas State Teachers College, and finally in 1930 to Fort Hays Senior College. In 1970, the college became a four-year institution, and in 1978 it became a college-level university. The University of Kansas alumni is sometimes referred to as "FHSU alumni" to avoid confusion with KU's Fort Hays State University. In November 2016, the university board of trustees approved a $350,000 raises for all employees. President and Chancellor The president of Fort Hays State University is Dr. F. Jean O'Toole. The chancellor is Dr. Mary Ayers. At the July 1, 2019 graduation ceremony, Dr. Mary Ayers became the first African American female university president in U.S.

Modern CPUs are a multi-billion dollar market driven by the sheer number of transistors required to support the application processors in mobile devices and the cloud. While the performance increase per transistor has stagnated, the proliferation of an ever larger number of transistors and the increasing disparity of transistor costs have driven the cost of processing units to the point where the only dominant cost drivers are the silicon bill, cooling, the power supply and power efficiency, packaging, energy and the customer perception of the unit price. RISC-V is an open source instruction set architecture that boasts a wide array of features such as a complete instruction set for vector processing, a VLIW ISA (Intelligent Scalable Vector Instruction Wavefront). This, in turn, can support simultaneous operations for data packing, vector operations, data packing and support for concurrent instruction processing. It can also implement a system that supports a direct power allocation model (as opposed to a power-aware scheduling model), a unified processor-cores model and a highly multi-
