We studied the rate and cause of lung function decline in a large population in an effort to establish a baseline for future studies of the natural history of lung function decline and treatment of obstructive airways disease. From a population of 11,000 residents of Olmstead County, Minnesota, we identified a random sample of 1,000 subjects (50% women and 50% men). All subjects underwent spirometric testing; forced expiratory volume in 1 s (FEV1), forced vital capacity (FVC), FEV1:FVC, and peak expiratory flow (PEF) were measured and predicted. Follow-up studies were performed by a private or community health care provider. The overall population was middle-aged and white, and 95% of the cohort survived. Over 3.5 years, mean values of FEV1, FVC, FEV1:FVC, and PEF declined 4.7%, 5.2%, 1.2%, and 3.2%, respectively. The 25th percentile of the FEV1 decline rate was -9.3%, whereas the 75th percentile was -5.5% per year. Subjects with an abnormal baseline spirometric score had significantly slower rates of decline than those with a normal score (FEV1, -4.3%/yr vs -6.7%/yr; FVC, -4.0%/yr vs -7.4%/yr; FEV1:FVC, -1.5%/yr vs -2.5%/yr; and PEF, -3.2%/yr vs -3.8%/yr). If the rate of decline in FEV1 is used as a surrogate index of airway obstruction, 15.8% of the population may have an obstructive abnormality.Q: How to get Last record from a table? Walkthrough for Virtual Date Girls - Jennifer. State's Representative Jennifer Edwards greets those gathered for the Monday march in favor of a $15 minimum wage. By Elizabeth Reck, Chicago Tribune Longtime Democratic political strategist Austin Beutner has long envisioned President Barack Obama's re-election as a second term in the White House. On April 10, Beutner said he will again commit $1 million to the Obama campaign. He said last week that additional contributions are on the way from other donors. "I started to do research, and if we have a '16er," he said, referring to the presidency number of another candidate, "I was going to go all in." In all, Beutner has said he will contribute $2.5 million to the Obama campaign, the most of any top political adviser. Some of his contributions have gone toward organizing efforts. Beutner recruited about 120 volunteers for the president's reelection campaign, which is still organizing efforts and finalizing goals for the 2012 race. He and his firm have contributed about $200,000 to the Republican National Committee. "Our fundraising is still going," said Beutner, who has been a longtime friend of the president's and served on his 2008 campaign. "We have a donor who has been with us almost from the beginning. She is very active and is in a position to give more. The main thing we want to do is make sure that we get her on board." Beutner said he isn't abandoning his work for Hillary Rodham Clinton. "I'm not going to be supporting anyone right now," he said. "I will commit $1 million and I will follow the data." Some national media outlets have long lumped Beutner and the president's chief political adviser, David Axelrod, in the same category — "Obama's Brain Trust." However, Beutner, a Chicago native and former Obama aide, insists he's not part of Axelrod's team, though he said he understands the perception of such a group. "David Axelrod is a friend of mine," he said 3e33713323
