learn" book to learn and practice Ruby. I am stuck at a point where I need to resolve a dependency foo = (10..11).to_a require 'one' require 'two' => nil One's class is defined as such in one.rb class One def initialize(arg1, arg2, arg3) @arg1 = arg1 @arg2 = arg2 @arg3 = arg3 end end Two's class definition is here: two.rb class Two def initialize(arg1, arg2, arg3) @arg1 = arg1 @arg2 = arg2 @arg3 = arg3 end end The problem I am facing is that Foo is actually invoking an empty class One. I am not sure why it is happening and I couldn't find any documentation on it. Any help is appreciated. A: Replace foo = (10..11).to_a with foo = (10..11).to_a.map { |i| One.new(i, i + 1, i + 2) } and see if that works. import 'package:facebook_authentication/facebook_authentication.dart'; import 'package:flutter/material.dart'; class LoginWithFacebook extends StatefulWidget { @override _LoginWithFacebookState createState() => _LoginWithFacebookState(); 0cc13bf012
