'contains' inside hasMany relationship I have two tables - 'agents' and 'companies'. There is a relationship between them as follows:
'companies' - 'agents' I am trying to query the companies of agents and get a list of agents that have certain roles. For example, I have the following sql in mysql: SELECT agents.id, companies.id FROM agents JOIN companies on agents.company_id = companies.id WHERE companies.name LIKE '%company%' GROUP BY agents.id HAVING COUNT() > 1 So the idea being, I group the agents by their company and then only agents with more than 1 company are shown. I am currently doing this: $agents = Agents::select(DB::raw('AGENTS.id')) ->leftJoin('companies', 'AGENTS.company_id', '=', 'companies.id') ->whereHas('companies', function ($query) { $query->where('name', 'LIKE', "%".$request->company."%"); }) ->groupBy('AGENTS.id') ->select('AGENTS.') ->havingRaw('COUNT(AGENTS.id) > 1') ->get(); The problem with this is that when I add the 'whereHas('companies', function ($query) {' query, it executes immediately. Thus the agents are only being shown when the query is run, not before. If I remove this query altogether then it doesn't group by companies. Is there a way to either stop running this query or make it so that it is run before it? A: The issue is that when you insert the whereHas
