Keymacro is an easy to use macro recorder that works as a tool for those who need to record certain events, like the opening and closing of a program, a keystroke, a mouse click, the double-clicking of the mouse and so on. You can then easily get all this data back and edit it at any time. Thanks to the user-friendly and straightforward interface, Keymacro is a useful program for all users that need to make macros for their computer. Keymacro Includes Keystrokes : With Keymacro you can record any keyboard events: keystrokes, mouse clicks, double clicks, button clicks, scrolling, time interval. You can choose among the many options that come with the software. For example, you can record any keystroke made with the SHIFT or CTRL keys. If you want, you can also record a keystroke made with the ALT keys. Keymacro Includes Windows : By using Keymacro, you can record the windows screen and mouse movements, as well as which windows is opened or closed at a specific time. As a result, you can easily take a snapshot of your computer screen. You can use the keystroke to start a program, and then you can stop it at any time using the same keystroke. Keymacro Includes Math : With Keymacro, you can easily record any equations that are made on the computer screen. You can then use these equations to make a program. By using the keystroke, you can enter numbers, calculations and other mathematical formulas and you can convert these mathematical formulas into programs. How it works : There are many ways to make Keymacro macros. Just in case you do not know, here is an explanation of how it works : Before you start recording, just open a window on your computer screen, then close the window. After that, press the keystroke that you want to record and wait until it stops. For example, if you want to record the SHIFT + ALT + CTRL + E keys, you will press the SHIFT + ALT + CTRL + E keys then wait for the computer screen to close, which will be the keystroke. After you stop recording, just open the program that you want to make and the keystroke will be converted into a program. Usability : The interface of the program is very intuitive and easy to use.
