Q: How to add a custom data attribute using Wicket? I'd like to add a custom attribute data-test="abc" to the body element of my page to be able to test the value of this attribute later using JavaScript. I added the following to my page: `@PageAttributes({"class": "mypage"}) public class MyPage extends WebPage` I also have a Wicket AjaxEventBehavior, which is used to submit my form: `document.querySelector('[data-test="abc"]').innerHTML = 'hello world';` However, the value of the input box is empty. I need to get the value of data-test attribute using JavaScript in order to test it for 'abc' and return an error message if it doesn't exist. What am I doing wrong? A: I just realised that wicket uses js to process all events, including submit. So I added my js script to a custom panel instead of the wicket panel. That way wicket processes the input event and sets the data attribute in its standard way. Then, I added my custom script to the panel I want to process that input. It's working now. `public`
