The man responsible for the Humble Indie Bundle proved earlier this week that he is in a rush to blow up the Amazon streamer, but now HIBB has managed to extract more Valve keys from his hands. The bundle, which has been running for 12 days, has been offering between $1 and $10 off of a number of great indie titles like Stacking, Journey and Battletoads. Epic games has been offering a 50% discount of its own title, the Unreal Engine. HIBB was a great success, raising almost $2.3 million for charity. As of this writing, the bundle has raised more than $3.9 million. The man who has made the whole thing happen is Ryan Mc Gibbons, and he has been busy doing interviews and meeting with press. Mc Gibbons tweeted out a list of Valve games he's got and in the tweet he shows that HIBB has managed to snatch Battlefield 3 and Portal 2 keys from his hands. Battlefield 3: $25 discount & Portal 2: $5 discount.

Thanks @Valve #Humblebundle — Ryan Mc Gibbons (@ryanmgib) March 20, 2012 Ryan Mc Gibbons took to Twitter to announce the Reddit figures on HIBB were a huge success, but now he's in a rush and he's got some 3DS games to give away too. Humble Indie Bundle 1 was huge! thanks for your enthusiasm. "Gee, it's like you've never seen a 3DS before!"

#3DS #Humblebundle #Valve — Ryan Mc Gibbons (@ryanmgib) March 20, 2012 The HIBB is a great chance to get some great titles for a little or a lot. The all-time top earner is Jim Crawford, who has managed to pick up Portal, Left 4 Dead, Team Fortress 2 and Team Fortress on Linux. Humble Indie Bundle brings games together for charity, with great discounts as a bonus Follow Ni
