I am listening to a song by the artist I-am-I, and it starts with this progression. It is a minor chord followed by a major chord and then just a minor chord again. It is not a chorus. This happens once and the song goes back to the I chord. As you can see, the guitar

00:00:01.194 --> 00:00:12.394 and if we look at the the zonal peaks you can see they're all run through the spray block and they all have the same pressure 00:00:12.394 --> 00:00:21.030 and if we look at the the zonal peaks you can see they're all run through the spray block and they all have the same pressure 00:00:21.030 --> 00:00:26.304 and that's a good starting point and so you can see the effects of those two issues and so I want to come around to 00:00:26.304 --> 00:00:30.964 the back because I want to come back here and then I want to just start at this pump and I'll show you what's going on 00:00:30.964 --> 00:00:35.856 here on the pump while we're doing this so we've got this new pump that's working really well up here and the reason 00:00:35.856 --> 00:00:40.584 we installed this new pump is because we had to remove and replace the main board and that's a bit of an expensive 00:00:40.584 --> 00:00:44.360 process because we have to pack all the insides out and so I want to take a look at this pressure here before we 00:00:44.360 --> 00:00:50.086 go and tear it apart but we're talking about how we can make sure the pressure here is acceptable and that's 00:00:50.086 --> 00:00:52.493 a really good idea and so what I want to do is I want to go ahead and get the valves open so let me take 00:00:52.493 --> 00:00:58.173 out the bolts here and the valve and I'm just going to disconnect this, which is actually the dry-in-line valve and 00:00:58.173 --> 00:01:03.803 I want to take this off so that we can open up and let's see what d0c515b9f4
