Product overview Supported operating systems: Windows 95, Windows 98, Windows 2000, Windows Me, Windows NT, and Windows XP.Q: How can I store a date time value in a table with some specific format? Im trying to store a DateTime as follows: 20180522132343000000 (24) For some Reason I cannot store these date times as it stores the data as "dd" + "/" + "MM" + "/" + "yyyy" I am trying to use this to update a table. I always get a dateTime error. I have done some research. I thought about possibly converting to a string. I have tried to use a "nvarchar" and dbo.fn_ConvertDateTime(20180522132343000000, 103) But it came back with the error of "The conversion of a varchar data type to a datetime data type resulted in an out-of-range value" Also tried using a nvarchar(100) and string.format "date datatype as (return the string value or for [%A, %B, %d, %e, %H, %l, %M, %S, %T, %Y, %Z])" I just tried this: dbo.fn_ConvertDateTime(@dt, 103) returned the error of "The input string is not a valid datetime value." I have also looked at this thread How to convert a date format of dateTime to another date format using sql server String.Format to format a date: (return the string value or for [%A, %B, %d, %e, %H, %l, %M, %S, %T, %Y, %Z]) A: I figured it out. I tried this string.format string.Format("{0:yyyyMMdHH
