Iran's Ahmadinejad Calls Israel 'A Real Threat' Iran's President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad has said that Israel is a real threat to its neighbors, including Iran, in the wake of an Israeli attack on a Gaza-bound Iranian arms ship. Ahmadinejad told a news conference Saturday in Tehran he was "overjoyed" to see a "real threat" as the "Axis of Evil," targeting Iran for its nuclear program. Iran denies Western allegations that it is seeking a nuclear weapons capability, saying the program is peaceful. The Iranian president said Israel would pay a price for any military intervention, after a similar attack in November of an Iranian-flagged freighter off the Israeli coast. "The Zionists, of course, would pay a price and their government would suffer from this decision," Ahmadinejad said, according to a Reuters account of his remarks. Israel reportedly neither confirmed nor denied its involvement in the earlier attack, in which four sailors were captured by the Iranians. The sailors were captured specially during a fire and their insides to become filled with water. When damaged and filled with water, the hose does not perform its function and must be replaced with a new hose. In one case, a hose was replaced nine times during a fire. A firefighter was injured because he was the one tasked with replacing the hose. To prevent more incidents like this, any damaged hose must be replaced quickly. The required
