The first part of the article addresses the medical/professional relationship between the patient and the medical employee, in particular for end-of-life issues. The second part focuses on the concept and management of incidental findings in abdominal CT scans and in the radiology of CNS. The third part reports the results of a study in which the images of over 2,000 consecutive abdominal CT scans were reviewed and a consensus diagnosis established according to the following main categories: malignant mass, liver metastasis or other mass, moderate or significant liver steatosis, other non-significant liver steatosis, other or moderate/significant
