Are you in the mood for some rock opera, awesome costumes, and a good ole horror movie Hollys favorite is The Rocky Horror Picture Show . After a couple of kids have car trouble, they are left stranded at the door of a Gothic mansion. They meet a host of strange characters, including Dr. Fran-N-Furter from the planet Transsexual. Whether its your first time watching this movie or youve already seen it a million times, this movie is a good excuse to sign along at the top of your lungs. This film, from National Geographic Documentary Films, presents on-location interviews with leading urban climber Alex Honnold, as he tells the story of his efforts to scale the face of the world's biggest rock without a rope in a bid to set a world free-soloing record. Achieving that quest is only one of Honnold's many incredible accomplishments, including being the first to climb El Capitan twice in one day. Rock climber Alex Honnold is perhaps the world's greatest free soloist. He's competed at the highest level for almost a decade, and has used strength, endurance, and technology to perform jaw-dropping feats of rock climbing, like reaching the summit of El Capitan without ropes. But through it all, Honnold is unpretentious, accessible, and funny, and this film shows his world, through action and interviews with those who know him best.
