BlockTube Crack + Free [Win/Mac] [Updated] 2022

BlockTube Crack Free Download is a simple add-on for the Mozilla Firefox browser that can help you filter the videos you see on YouTube and completely block the content you don't want to see. The add-on does not require a browser restart and, moments after installing it, you should be able to see its icon in the browser's toolbar. There are various filters you can apply when configuring BlockTube and, since regex matching is also supported, you might want to take a look at the wiki first to see how rules are set in place. In short, each new line is a rule, and comments, which are marked by two consecutive slash symbols, can be added to the rules to explain them. Rules are case insensitive so you don't need to worry about the caps lock being on or off. Filter videos, channels and comments on YouTube BlockTube can filter videos based on keywords or regex matches in their title, but there are also options to block certain channels (based on their ID and their name), or comments. The add-on's configuration can be assigned a password, for security purposes. To test that the extension works, you can look for a certain keyword on YouTube, then add that particular keyword in the list of filters and perform the search again. You should notice that the blocked content, be it search results, channels, or comments, are not visible on YouTube anymore, as if they don't exist. On the other hand, the content in your own playlists is not blocked. Additionally, BlockTube can hide videos that don't match your custom length criteria and deactivate the "Trending" page. Practical add-on that can be used as a parental control tool Despite being just a simple add-on, BlockTube might make you think about parental control more than anything else. It can be used to block content that might be considered inappropriate for a certain age, or set playtime limits for children accessing YouTube via Firefox. How do I block YouTube on Mozilla Firefox? Sometimes, all you need is a filter for your YouTube videos. You don't have to run to your computer, and you don't have to connect your PC to the Internet. Instead, you can use a filter to block YouTube videos. The Firefox extension you are about to learn about is called "BlockTube", and it will help you block certain YouTube videos. These videos are usually ones you don't want to see, like pornography or violent content. But not all of your videos on YouTube will be too "raunchy" for

This add-on allows you to assign a key for the selected text. You can configure a different shortcut for the text inside a browser, editor, text area or other type of element. Possible Actions: Execute a pre-defined macro on the selected text. Copy the selected text to the clipboard. Note that the text is also copied to the clipboard if it was selected on the browser window (Ctrl + C on Windows, cmd + c on Mac). Execute the last macro pressed on the clipboard (the selection was made outside the browser). Note that if no macro has been assigned to the selected text, then it executes the "copy to clipboard" action. INSTRUCTIONS: This add-on allows you to assign a key for the selected text. Note that if no macro has been assigned to the selected text, then it executes the "copy to clipboard" action. Note that the element itself can be set to be a shortcut too. The actions assigned to the element can override the actions assigned to the text. The add-on also supports Ctrl + Shift + C, but it doesn't count for the action assigned to the element. It works with Ctrl + Shift + C only when the clipboard is already available. This add-on is compatible with all the major browsers. You can use it without any external add-on for Firefox, Chrome or Opera. You can use it on an external tool like TextMate, Sublime Text, Vim, Emacs, etc. If you want to make the hotkey for the selected text, always available, the add-on must be reloaded whenever you change it. You can save the action assigned to the element. Once saved, it can be used again without reloading the add-on every time. For this reason, it is important to use a unique key name for each saved action. In case you want to use it in other computers, or even in another browser, 2edc1e01e8
