The application is written with a great amount of attention to details and features, which are outlined below: Multiple device models The application supports up to 6 different devices, meaning that users will be able to test on their iPhones and iPads at the same time. Multiple scenarios The process can be tailored to a number of scenarios, including: Failed Touch ID Devices that don't have Touch ID will have their passcode be reset to a random one. Failed Face ID Similar to the Touch ID scenario, the device will receive a different passcode. The Apple ID is in-active Users will be required to create a new Apple ID and verify their email address. The account will then be connected to the target device. Failed iCloud Similar to the Apple ID process, users will be required to create a new iCloud account. Gone and new iPhone or iPad The device model can be determined with great accuracy through the use of the serial number, which will not be deleted or changed. Expired passwords Cracked UnlockGo With Keygen will examine the authentication mode and reset the password to the default one. Face or Touch ID not available If users don't have Touch ID, they will be required to go through a number of steps in order to assign a new one. Backed up to iCloud If the device is backed up to iCloud, the passcode will be cleared and a new one will be generated. Broken screen The password will be cleared and a new one will be generated. Provided solutions On completion, the user will be notified with a message explaining the type of access they will have and the steps that they will be required to follow in order to regain access. The application will allow users to lock the screen of their devices, in order to prevent other people from accessing the device. Similarly, it will allow users to make an iPhone or iPad disappear from the Find My iPhone feature. UnlockGo does not require users to register or sign in, which means that it won't run the risk of being removed from the App Store.
